

Richardson Ordering Instructions and Hints

Greetings and welcome to the Ordering process. After doing this for over 25 years now, I have learned that there are some universal questions and concerns regarding the ordering of a custom fly box. I'll try to help make it as easy and simple as possible.

First and foremost, don't overthink it and don't worry that you might make a mistake. I'll look over your Order Form and make comments/suggestions and ask questions directly to you when I confirm receipt of your order. This is a process and we will work together as much as needed to reach the best design for you. And you can make design changes any time, or cancel if necessary, right up until we arrange payment and I start making the parts to build your Box.

Start by choosing the Richardson model and number of trays that you think will best suit your style and needs. Of primary importance here are your most common fishing situations and how many flies you want on hand at one time. Humphreys trays hold a bit more flies than the average plastic fly box, Original trays hold 1-1/2 to 2 times more.

--The Original Model gives you the most capacity for distance out from your chest and is the best overall choice. A 3 tray Original has the same capacity as a 4 tray Humphreys.

--The Humphreys and Ultra-Lite are one inch shorter vertically, giving you more room below the Box (between the bottom of the Box and your waist). These models are better suited for tight fishing situations like brushy native streams or fishing from a canoe/kayak/float tube or very deep wading.

Now pick a color. The terms "Standard" and "Deluxe" refer to color only. Standard Boxes are plain mill finish aluminum with woodgrain veneer on front and back. They start life as a shiny silver and age to a silver-gray patina. Deluxe Boxes are powder coated with either textured Green or Black (yes, I coat all the parts myself).

Next, Interior Options, what you want inside of each tray. Consider how you like to store your flies: in compartments (Dividers) or in foam. Keep in mind that there is no rule that says certain types of flies must be stored a certain way. Foam allows organization in rows and/or quick-change capability with Foam Inserts. Dividers will hold more flies and will never wear out and need to be replaced. Felt Nymph Pads are old-school and require barbless hooks, but will allow several layers of flies stored in one tray. The Tippet Dispenser does take up an entire tray and requires a little practice, but makes tippet changes lightning fast.

Finally, the Exterior Options can allow you to fix problems with or improve your fishing system. The Harness and Pouches can get you out of the vest. The Light, Floatant Holder and Mag Glass bring those heavily used items to your fingertips right with all your flies.

Place the order. Get yourself in line. We will work out the details and I'll build your Box.
